

James Barlow is the Assistant Team Manager at Learning Disability Resource Centre, Stockport Metropolitan Borough Council. In recent years he's progressed through a number of roles to his current position.

"I've always been very proactive about my own professional development. I look at various opportunities to develop myself both internally and outside of my organisation, such as Skills for Care events etc. My own managers are very supportive and know how keen I am to learn and are constantly forwarding new training and development opportunities."
